P38 check your understanding

1) People born in Canada are automatically Canadian citizens. Also, people born outside of Canada after February 15, 1977, and who have one Canadian parent are citizens. Last, have been a permanent resident of Canada for three years.

2) Fundamental freedoms, include freedom of conscience and religion, thought, belief, opinion, and expression. Moreover, freedom of peaceful assembly, and association. Also, the mobility rights, which is the right to live and work in any province or territory.

3) So that people could be more specific of what they were protected for. From my perspective, I think the fundamental freedoms is the most important of all, since that it shows which kind of freedom do people possess. Also, the equality rights are very important since people have to make sure that their age, sex, religion or people who carries mental or physical disability could be treated in the same way and to have equal treatment and rights.

4) a)b)d); The right to be protected from being beaten up could protect one's from being hurt.
